

March 24, 2011

Firm builds speculative space in Redlands

A Southern California company has started building a 616,542-square-foot industrial building in Redlands within the Watson Commerce Center at 26635 Pioneer Ave., according to the company.

The building, developed by Carson-based Watson Land Company, hasn't been leased yet, making it the first speculative industrial space to be built in the Inland region since 2009, according to a statement from the company.

Construction is expected to be finished by the fourth quarter of this year.